

CONFERENCE CALL FOR PROPOSALS: TEACHING INTERNATIONAL LAW

The Director of IMLI, Professor David Attard, wishes to bring to your attention that The Organising Committee of the British Institute of International and Comparative Law Conference on ‘Teaching International Law’ invites all those engaged in the teaching of international law from around the world to share their experiences and critically reflect on current practices of teaching international law. Those interested are invited to submit an individual presentation proposal or a collective panel proposal by 15 April 2020.

The aim is to foster reflection and discussion amongst the plurality of actors that teach international law across different contexts, traditions, and perspectives. Reflections may focus on general courses of international law or more specialised courses - including courses concerning particular branches of international law (e.g. environmental law, investment law, trade law, human rights law, humanitarian law, or international criminal law) or cross-cutting themes (e.g. non-state actors, inequality, technology).

Applicants are invited to send their abstracts and a 200-word bio to teachingILconf@biicl.org by 15 April 2020 with ‘Teaching IL Conference’ in the subject line. If you wish to discuss topics or ideas informally, please feel free to contact teachingILconf@biicl.org. Decisions on the proposals will be communicated by 31 May 2020.

The conference will be held on 7 and 8 September 2020 at the British Institute of International and Comparative Law at Charles Clore House, 17, Russell Square, London.

Due to the seriousness of the climate crisis and considerations of inclusiveness (including: visas, health issues, care obligations), BIICL will provide support for participants to present remotely if desired.

The detailed call for proposals is attached for ease of reference.

For guidelines on submission, please go to <https://www.biicl.org/teaching-international-law>.
