UN GENERAL ASSEMBLY FORMER PRESIDENT LECTURES AT IMLI

Professor Guido de Marco, Former President of the UN General Assembly during his lecture

Professor Guido DeMarco, President Emeritus of Malta and President of the 45th Session of the United Nations General Assembly (1990-1991), commenced his course of lectures on the United Nations on 6 October 2009, within the framework of the Course on International Institutions.

During his lectures Professor DeMarco will provide the students with an over-view of the role of the United Nations. Professor DeMarco, through an analysis of the structure of the United Nations will examine the importance and functioning of the United Nations' principal organs. The course also includes an analysis of the salient provisions of the UN Charter. The lectures will be delivered from an academic point of view enriched by Professor DeMarco's vast experience in diplomacy.

Professor DeMarco was introduced by the Director, Professor David Attard, who expressed his great pleasure at Professor Demarco visit and recalled his immense experience in diplomacy and his contribution to bring the United Nations closer to the individual.
