

CMI VICE-PRESIDENT HONORIS CAUSA LECTURES AT IMLI

Professor Frank L. Wiswall, Jr., Vice-President Honoris Causa of the Comité Maritime International (CMI) visited the Institute from 9 November to 17 November 2010 to deliver his lectures to the 22nd IMLI Class. The first set of lectures was dedicated to the study of “Maritime Legal History”, whereas the second part of his lectures focused on “Maritime Legislation Drafting”.

During the course on Maritime Legal History Professor Wiswall gave the students an understanding of how maritime law has developed and why it has developed in particular ways. He stressed at the outset of his lectures that, in the case of maritime law, the vast majority of surviving historical records available to the researcher are largely Mediterranean and European in orientation so that students in class who are from other global regions should not assume that the history of their own country is being ignored. During the second week of his stay Professor Wiswall lectured on the drafting and adoption of national and international Maritime Legislation. During his lectures he emphasized the process by which international maritime legislation is developed in the IMO.
