The French Maritime Law Association brings together 400 jurists, lawyers and specialists in maritime law. It is a member of the Comité Maritime International, which acts as a consultant to public and private organizations that develop the instruments of international maritime law. The Association plays an active role both nationally and internationally. Thanks to the expertise and participation of its members, it is able to reflect all the positions or interests that are emerging on all the problems of maritime world.

Professor David Attard (Director of IMLI) and the Institute's Staff take this opportunity to congratulate Dr. Boisson on the deserved honour.
