A. EXPLANATORY NOTE

1. Introduction

The purpose of this drafting project is to provide an amendment to the Merchant Shipping (Maritime Claims Limitation of Liability) Act of the Bahamas, 1989, which incorporated the 1976 Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (LLMC Convention). The incorporation of the 1996 Protocol to the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (1996 LLMC Protocol) will be done through this proposed amendment.

It is noteworthy to mention that the limits of the LLMC Convention were greatly increased by the 1996 LLMC Protocol, and in addition to enhancing the limits of liability the 1996 LLMC Protocol introduced a tacit amendment procedure. Based on this tacit amendment procedure through the Resolution LEG.5(99) in 2012 the limits of liability were further increased and they will enter into force on 8 June 2015. Therefore, the proposed draft will automatically refer to the 2012 limits of liability.

2. The Bahamas Ship Registry

The Bahamas is an archipelago with a rich maritime heritage. The first ship was registered in the Bahamas more than thirty years ago, and surprisingly, the fleet grew to its current position as one of the world’s largest ship Registers, with over 50 million gross tonnage of ships flying the Bahamas flag in every corner of the globe.¹

By the early 1990’s, the Register rapidly increased; this clearly highlighted the fact that there was need for a new arrangement for the management of the international fleet. This gave rise to The Bahamas Maritime Authority (BMA), which was established in July, 1995.\(^2\) The functions of the Authority include things such as registering of vessels, enforcement of ship safety requirements and monitoring and improving standards. Additionally, the BMA represented The Bahamas at the International Maritime Organization (IMO) and other international bodies; such as the European Commission and the United States Coast Guard.

The policy of the BMA is that it believes that there must not be a sacrifice of standards in order to attract tonnage. In fact, the regulations of the BMA are that if the ships do not comply with the international standards they are not accepted onto the register. This is illustrated in their Mission Statement,

“To administer the registration and regulation of Bahamas ships, adopting international standards of safety, security and environmental protection to ensure a fleet of the highest quality.”\(^3\)

In performing their duties, the BMA has provided many reasons why the Bahamas has become a tempting prospect for the shipping industry. The Bahamas has an open registry, which is an attraction all by itself. Being an open registry is one of the major reasons for the registration of a vessel under the Bahamas flag. It provides for the fact that the owners and crewmembers of a ship do not need to be Bahamian nationals. The BMA has a wide network of Nautical Inspectors who are internationally available to advise captains and crewmembers of vessels registered under the Bahamian flag is another benefit of registering under a Bahamian flag.\(^4\) Additionally, registration of annual fees and taxes are low and competitive.\(^5\) Another advantage is that the Bahamas is an active member of the

\(^2\) Ibid.
IMO Council. Additionally, and very importantly, the BMA listens to the voices of it’s shipowners and reflects their interests through the work of the Authority.

Given that the Bahamas is in 6th position with regard to the world’s largest ship registries, it is important to implement the latest rules and regulations with regard to limitation of liability.

I. The LLMC Convention

The concept of limitation of liability allows the ship owner to limit his financial exposure for maritime claims up to a maximum sum regardless of the actual amount of the claims brought against him. Once an incident has occurred the vital issue is how to limit the extent of one’s liability. The limit of liability is determined based on the tonnage (size) of the ship that is involved in the incident. Ways to limit the liability of a party can be found in the charter agreement that was made between the parties. However, the issue arises when there is a third party that is involved. It is where third parties are affected that the LLMC Convention is consulted by the owner, and other entitled parties, to limit their liabilities. The right of limitation under the LLMC Convention is available to shipowners and salvors. The LLMC Convention sets out a wide definition of parties qualifying as a “shipowner”, not only including owners but also charterers, managers and operators of a sea-going ship.

The LLMC Convention provides a rigorous regime for the system for limiting liability. This was done by imposing on the party challenging the right to limit the burden of proving that the loss resulted from the ship owner’s “personal act of omission, committed with the intent to cause such loss, or recklessly and with knowledge that such loss would probably result.\textsuperscript{10} However, there have been cases where this rigorous regime has been broken; for example, in the case of \textit{THE SAINT JACQUES II}.\textsuperscript{11} In this case it was stated that the right to limit is not unbreakable at all. Gross J denied an application for summary judgment in the limitation action that arose out of a collision between the \textit{Saint Jacques II} and the \textit{Gudermes}, since he considered that there was a real prospect of succeeding at a trial in proving that Article 4 of the Convention applied due to the reckless navigation of the vessel across the Traffic Separation Scheme and the obviousness of the risk of collision.\textsuperscript{12} Gross J, in affirming that the limits of the LLMC Convention can be broken, held that,

\begin{quote}
“…it simply cannot be assumed of a man sufficiently reckless to navigate in the manner described that he could not have done so with knowledge that a collision would probably result; a sensible, prudent mariner is unlikely to have navigated as the first claimant did in the first place […] I am satisfied that the first defendants have a real prospect of demonstrating at trial that what was involved here was the taking of a “reckless maneuver…by a non-suicidal” mariner sufficient to bring the matter within art 4.”\textsuperscript{13}
\end{quote}

Although there was a fierce attempt to make the limits unbreakable, it was not successful. Because despite the fact these limits are hard to break, it can be done.

The LLMC Convention applies to personal claims (such as injury and loss of life) as well as property damage claims (such as damage to other ships, property or harbor works). The unit of measurement for monetary liability used under this LLMC Convention is the Special Drawing Right (SDR), which is an interest-bearing international reserve asset.\textsuperscript{14}

As between personal injury claims and property claims, the limits were much higher in relation to limits adopted for personal injury claims. The limits provided will be discussed under Part 3(II) of this Explanatory Note.

Limitation of liability for passenger claims is also another important factor of the LLMC Convention; this is covered in Article 7 of the LLMC Convention. One of the issues of the twenty-eighth session of IMCO Legal Committee was whether it was necessary to establish a separate fund for passenger claims, or whether such claims can fall within the general fund established for loss of life and personal injuries. The decision of the Committee was that there should be a separate fund established for claims for loss of life or personal injuries for passengers, and the basis for limitation was based on passenger capacity. The limitation provided under Article 7 is calculated based on the number of passengers that the ship is authorized to carry. The figure under Article 7 was set at 46,666 SDRs, and this figure is to be “multiplied by the number of passengers which the ship is authorized to carry according to the ship’s certificate”. Regardless of the amount of the calculation the amount cannot exceed 25,000,000 SDRs.

This Convention intended to provide a harmonization of the arena of limitation of liability.

II. The 1996 LLMC Protocol

The limits that were enunciated in the LLMC Convention were considered to be a landmark development for the law of limitation of liability, as they were seen to be sufficient to provide compensation to claimants, while safeguarding the right of limitation of liability. However, years after the LLMC Convention came into force it was noticed, that there was a need for further revision. It was noticed that the limits of liability that were provided under the LLMC Convention had been gravely depreciated by inflation and were no longer capable of providing satisfaction for the maritime claims.

To counteract the problem, the Legal Committee had sixty-eighth session to commence revision of the LLMC Convention. Consequently, the UK tendered a Draft Protocol to the LLMC Convention to the Legal Committee. The Protocol was adopted at the IMO Headquarters between 15th April and 3rd May, 1996.

(a) The Changes Brought About by the Protocol

As explained above, the 1996 LLMC Protocol arose twenty years after the birth of the LLMC Convention because the LLMC Convention was no longer capable of satisfying the possible maritime claims. It provided some important changes that were needed to assist the LLMC Convention in the management of maritime claims. The changes explored are the general limits, the claims excepted from limitation, the limitation of liability of passenger claims and amendment of limits.

Firstly, it must be noted that the 1996 LLMC Protocol did not make any changes to the list of persons that were entitled to limit liability. Therefore, the list of persons entitled to liability remained stipulated in Article 1 of the LLMC Convention.

(i) The General Limits of Liability

The 1996 LLMC Protocol has provided a substantial increase on the limits of liability with regard to general liability. The LLMC Convention lays out specified limits of liability for two claims; namely claims for loss of life or personal injury and property claims (such as damage to other ships or damage cause to the harbors).

Article 6(1) of the LLMC Convention is replaced by figures in Article 6(1) of the 1996 LLMC Protocol in respect of claims for loss of life and personal injury. For clarification purposes, the table below demonstrates the significant difference between the two.

<tr>
<th>Tonnage</th>
<th>Limits of Liability</th>
<th>Tonnage</th>
<th>Limits of Liability</th>

<tr>
<td>Ships Less than 500 tons</td>

<td>250 SDRs per ton</td>
<td>From 70,001 tons and above</td>
<td>604 SDRs per ton</td>

</tbody>
</table>

From the above table it can be seen that there was a sizeable increase in the limits of liability under the 1996 LLMC Protocol. An example of this increase is shown by observing the category of ships from 3,001 to 30,000 tons under both the LLMC Convention and the 1996 LLMC Protocol. Under the LLMC Convention the limit for liability is to be calculated based on 333 SDRs per ton; whereas under the 1996 LLMC Protocol, the liability of the same vessel is to be calculated based on 906 SDRs per ton. The same can be said for ships from 70,001 tons and above; under the LLMC Convention the calculation is based on 167 SDRs per ton; whereas, under the 1996 LLMC Protocol the number has been largely increased to 604 SDRs per ton. Another noted difference provided in the above table is that the minimum tonnage was raised from 500 tons to 2,000 tons.

Another table will be used to illustrate the amendments made in relation to limits of liability for other claims.\(^{25}\)

The same can be said as explained above. With the introduction of the Amended Protocol there is a clear visual that not only has the limit of liability increased; but there has also been a raise in the minimum tonnage from 501 tons to 2,001 tons.

(ii) Claims Exempted from Limitation

In regard to claims that are exempt from limitation, the 1996 LLMC Protocol provided a modification to Articles 3 and 18. For Article 3, the 1996 LLMC Protocol has made an amendment to an automatic exclusion of the LLMC Convention. The change that emerges from this is in relation to special compensation to be provided for salvage. Article 3 of the Amended Protocol makes reference to Article 14(1) of the Salvage Convention\(^\text{27}\), which provides that where salvage operations are carried out for a vessel that has threatened damage to the environment and has failed to earn a reward under Article 13 of the International Convention on Salvage, he shall be entitled to special compensation from the owner of that vessel.

The view of the Diplomatic Conference, in the implementation of the Amended Protocol, was that claims for special compensation, such as those provided for in Article 14(1) of the Salvage Convention, are those for which no limitation of liability should be available. However, a limitation to this modification is that it was only applicable to those to whom the Protocol applied; particularly, the Parties to it.

\(^{26}\) Special Drawing Rights.

\(^{27}\) IMO, International Convention on Salvage 1989

The other modification that was made was to Article 18. this exclusion is an optional exclusion. Under the LLMC Convention States have the right to make reservations for those claims that are subject to limitation (Article 2); more specifically, articles 2(1)(d) and (e). However, the 1996 LLMC Protocol provides for an additional reservation. Under Article 18(1)(b) States may reserve the right,

“To exclude claims for damage within the meaning of the International Convention on Liability and Compensation for Damage in Connection with the Carriage of Hazardous and Noxious Substances by Sea…”

It is noteworthy that Griggs, Williams and Farr were surprised that it was mentioned under Article 18 (optional exclusions) rather than Article 3 (automatic exclusions); but Martínez Gutiérrez points out that this was because of “a question of taste” by the Chairman of the Committee of the Conference, and it could have been done the alternative way as well.

(iii) The Limit of Liability For Passenger Claims

Another increase of limitation the 1996 LLMC Protocol has provided is the limit of liability for passenger claims. Under the LLMC Convention the limit of liability for passenger claims was 46,666 SDRs; and this figure is to be multiplied by the number of passengers, which the ship is authorized to carry according to the ships certificate. This figure, however, is capped at 25 million. The limit under the 1996 LLMC Protocol was increased to 175,000 SDRs; and this figure is to be multiplied by the number of passengers, which the ship is authorized to carry according to the ships certificate. A distinct difference between the two is that there is no longer a cap on this. Martínez Gutiérrez expressed this by saying,

29 Martinez, Norman A.; Footnote 11, p. 104.
30 Martinez, Norman A.; Footnote 11, p. 105.
31 Ibid.
“The LLMC Convention’s cap of 25,000,000 SDRs was abolished by the 1996 Protocol.”

(iv) “Opt Out” Clause

An additional modification is the “opt out” clause, which is found in Article 15(3)(bis). It is noteworthy that notwithstanding the agreement to the amendment of Article 7 of the LLMC Convention, there were States that retained a policy of unlimited liability for passenger claims and pressed for the inclusion of an opt-out clause in the 1996 LLMC Protocol.

The Japanese delegation put forward proposals during the seventy-first and seventy-second sessions of the Committee. Of the proposals made, most delegations expressed their support for their second proposal that was made, considering that this would allow States to set higher limits than those in the Protocol; however, it would prevent States from setting lower limits.

The Diplomatic Conference embraced the proposed amendment, which is now codified in the 1996 LLMC Protocol, and reads:

“Notwithstanding the limit of liability prescribed in paragraph 1 of Article 7, a State Party may regulate by specific provisions of national law the system of life or personal injury to passengers of a ship, provided that the limit is not lower than that prescribed in paragraph 1 of Article 7. A State Party which makes use of the option provided for in this paragraph shall inform the Secretary-General of the limits of liability adopted or of the fact that there are none.”

The significance of this provision is that by allowing States to impose higher limits of liability, the 1996 LLMC Protocol deters from the aim of international unification of the law regarding limitation of liability. This allows for States to regulate the amount of limitation of liability.

33 Martinez, Norman A.; Footnote 11, p. 109.
34 Martinez, Norman A.; Footnote 11, p. 110.
35 Ibid.
It is the view of Martínez Gutiérrez that when it comes to passenger claims, it has always been the intention to maintain a relation between the sums set out in the LLMC Convention and those in the Athens Convention Relating to the Carriage of Passengers and Their Luggage By Sea.\(^\text{36}\) Considering this, it can be noted that the 1996 LLMC Protocol is falling behind after the Athens Convention 2002 was adopted.\(^\text{37}\) For this reason the suggestion has been made that the limits of liability for passenger claims set out in the 1996 LLMC Protocol should be increased to match those of the Athens Convention (2002). Failing this amount, it has been argued that the limits should at least be increased to match the “strict liability” amount and the required “compulsory insurance” amount of 250,000 units of account.\(^\text{38}\)

After the Protocol entered into force it provided for an approximate 250% rise in regard to limitation than limitation under the LLMC Convention.\(^\text{39}\) However, these limits were still not adequate to fulfill the needs of the shipping industry. This highlighted an important feature of the Protocol, which was the tacit amendment procedure. This procedure was introduced as in effort to promote expediency and efficiency in the system of updating the limits of liability.\(^\text{40}\) Using this procedure means that any amendment adopted shall be deemed to have been accepted at the end of an eighteen month period, once there are no objections to the proposed amendment. This period begins after the date of notification to all contracting States and shall enter into force eighteen months after its acceptance (a total of 36 months). Consequently, the limits of liability that will be dealt with under Part 4 of this Explanatory Note are the limits provided under the Amended Protocol.

III. The New Limits of Liability

On 19 April 2012 the IMO announced new limits to take effect on 8 June 2015, in accordance with the tacit acceptance procedure. These limits were brought about resulting from the fact that the limits expressed under the 1996 LLMC Protocol fell short of the cost of responding to the incident in THE PACIFIC ADVENTURER. In this case the ship, The Pacific Adventurer lost 31 cargo containers during bad weather conditions. Resulting from this loss approximately 270 tons of oil washed ashore the eastern side of Cape Moreton, Queensland. The clean up operations included 2,500 people to clean up over 3,000 tons of sand and continued for about 2 months. The clean up operations cost about US $25 million; however, the limitation of liability of a ship this size was 7,556,400 SDRs (which worked out to about US $11,708,490).

It was for this reason that the new proposed limits had to be something that was justifiable. This case expressed the need to “ensure that any increases are at a justifiable level that will be insurable at reasonable cost and to avoid setting a precedent for arbitrary increases in the future.” The Committee, during their ninety-seventh session, supported the moderate proposal made by Japan, which resulted in an increase of 51% to the 1996 Protocol’s limits. It therefore adopted Resolution LEG.5(99) on the Adoption of Amendments of the Limitation Amounts in the Protocol of 1996 to the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims.

With the tacit acceptance procedure that was introduced by the 1996 LLMC Protocol the new limits of Article 6(1) of the 1996 LLMC Protocol are as follows:

(a) in respect of claims for loss of life or personal injury,

(i) 3.02 million Units of Account for a ship with a tonnage not exceeding 2,000 tons,

42 Martinez, Norman A.; Footnote 8, p. 345.
43 Martinez, Norman A.; Footnote 8, p. 357.
44 Ibid.
(ii) for a ship with a tonnage in excess thereof, the following amount in addition to that mentioned in (i):
for each ton from 2,001 to 30,000 tons, 1,208 Units of Account; for each ton from 30,001 to 70,000 tons, 906 Units of Account; and for each ton in excess of 70,000 tons, 604 Units of Account

(b) in respect of any other claims,

(i) 1.51 million Units of Account for a ship with a tonnage not exceeding 2,000 tons,

(ii) for a ship with a tonnage in excess thereof the following amount in addition to that mentioned in (i):
for each ton from 2,001 to 30,000 tons, 604 Units of Account
for each ton from 30,001 to 70,000 tons, 453 Units of Account
for each ton in excess of 70,000 tons, 302 Units of Account

It is noteworthy to mention that considering that as of 8 June 2015 the 2012 limits of liability will be automatically applied in relation to the 1996 LLMC Protocol, by acceding to the incorporation of the 1996 LLMC Protocol the Bahamas would have immediately incorporated the 1996 LLMC Protocol which has the new limits. Consequently, there is no need to refer to the Protocol as amended.

The Bahamas is placed at number six in the world with regard to the size of its ship registry; and it is for this reason that its important to be up to date with the more recent ways to limit liability with regard to maritime claims. Consequently, there is a need for effective regulation of international and domestic regulations in the shipping industry.
The Bahamas is a party to the LLMC Convention, being a party to this Convention, it provided a uniform regime for the limitation of liability of general maritime claims against shipowners and salvors such as claims for personal injury, death and property damage. An advantage of adopting the 1996 LLMC Protocol means that it will provide for substantial increase in the amount of compensation payable under the Convention.

The tacit acceptance procedure is also an advantage of incorporating the 1996 LLMC Protocol into the laws of the Bahamas. This procedure will eradicate the tenuous procedure involved with making amendments to laws. The result of this is that amendments will come into force merely by virtue of passage of a period of time.

Another consideration for the implementation of the 1996 LLMC Protocol in the Bahamas is the fact that the number one industry in the Bahamas is Tourism, and if there is an incident that damages our pristine beaches it will be detrimental. Under the 1976 Convention there were limits provided; but it was clear that these limits were not sufficient. Another consideration is that the Bahamas has many cruise liners that come to our shores; therefore, the new limits provided under the 1996 LLMC Protocol are essential.

Providing an opt out clause in the 1996 LLMC Protocol opens the door to whatever the Bahamas desires to use a figure for limitation of liability in regard to passenger claims. However, this position moves in favor of the State’s interest rather than the uniformity that is provided under the Convention. If there is a continuous increase in the limits of liability it would eventually make the Convention void. The importance of this for The Bahamas is that if the limits of liability are increased, the ticket prices for cruises will be increased because of the premiums that the ship owner must pay are now higher. The higher it is for tickets for cruises the less people will be able to go on them. This is a grave hamper on our number one industry, the tourism industry, since cruise liners bring thousands of tourists to our islands on a daily basis. Therefore, while the opt out clause is an option available under the Convention, it would be beneficial for the Bahamas if it does not avail itself of such an option because the Convention provides a reasonable limit and would be in the interest of the Bahamas as a whole to maintain the limit provided.

Another option that is afforded under the Convention is a reservation in regard to Hazardous and Noxious Substances. The reservation that will be made is that occurrences of carriage of hazardous and noxious substances which take place if and when the coming into force of the Convention or Protocol to the International Convention on Liability and Compensation for Damage in Connection with the Carriage of Hazardous and Noxious Substances by Sea\textsuperscript{45} will be excluded from the liability.

An additional alteration that is made is under the claims that are subject to limitation. Under Part II of the Interpretation of the Act will not only cover wreck under Section 3(1) of the Act; but, will cover both wreck and cargo. The rationale for this is that in principle, reading Article 2, read as a whole, would seem that a State excluding wreck and cargo

removal claims would also have excluded any consequential recourse claims.\textsuperscript{46} Although there are not as yet any decisive laws in this area, it is submitted that a reservation under Article 18 should not be deemed to have also excluded recourse claims.\textsuperscript{47}

To make the 1996 LLMC Protocol apart of the laws of the Bahamas an instrument of accession must be provided to the IMO. This instrument can be found in Appendix 1 of this Drafting Project.

Consequently, with the introduction of the 1996 LLMC Protocol, it allows for a greater increase of the limits, which will be beneficial for the Bahamas, as they would be the only one that is responsible for costs affiliated with the incident. The Protocol substantially increases the amount of compensation payable in the event of an incident causing damage or loss. Therefore, with greater limits the burden is less for the coastal State to bear. Moreover, if the Protocol is adopted, the new limits, which arise by virtue of tacit acceptance procedure, would also be a positive consideration for the Bahamas.

or are likely to be begun in The Bahamas or elsewhere to enforce the liability in whole or in part; and without prejudice to the generality of the preceding provisions of this paragraph such a court shall, where the liability is or may be partly enforceable in other proceedings in The Bahamas or elsewhere, have

Other Provisions Adapting or Supplementing the Convention

9. Any reference in The Convention to a contract of carriage excludes a contract of carriage which is not for reward.

5. In this Convention the liability of a shipowner shall include liability in an action brought against the vessel herself.

6. An insurer of liability for claims subject to limitation in accordance with the rules of this Convention shall be entitled to the benefits of this Convention to the same extent as the assured himself.

7. The act of invoking limitation of liability shall not constitute an admission of liability.

even if brought by way of recourse or for indemnity under a contract or otherwise.

ARTICLE 5

CHAPTER II
LIMITS OF LIABILITY

ARTICLE 6
The General Limits
1. The limits of liability for claims other than those mentioned in Article 7, arising on any distinct occasion, shall be calculated as follows:
   (a) in respect of claims for loss of life or personal injury;
       (i) 3.2 million Units of Account of Account for a ship with a tonnage not exceeding 2,000 tons,
       (ii) for a ship with a tonnage in excess thereof, the following amount in addition to that mentioned in (i):
            for each ton from 2,001 to 30,000 tons, 1,208 Units of Account; for each ton from 30,001 to 70,000 tons, 906 Units of Account; and for each ton in excess of 70,000 tons, 604 Units of Account,
   (b) in respect of any other claims,
       (i) 1.51 million Units of Account for a ship with a tonnage not exceeding 2,000 tons,
       (ii) for a ship with a tonnage in excess thereof, the following amount in addition to that mentioned in (i):
            for each ton from 2,001 to 30,000 tons, 604 Units of Account; for each ton from 30,001 to 70,000 tons, 453 Units of Account; and for each ton in excess of 70,000 tons, 302 Units of Account.

2. Where the amount calculated in accordance with paragraph 1(a) is insufficient to pay the claims mentioned therein in full, the amount calculated in accordance with paragraph 1(b) shall be available for payment of the unpaid balance of claims under paragraph 1(a) and such unpaid balance shall rank rateably with claims mentioned under paragraph 1(b).
3. However, without prejudice to the right of claims for loss of life or personal injury according to paragraph 2, a State Party may provide in its national law that claims in respect of damage to harbour works, basins and waterways and aids to navigation shall have such priority over other claims under paragraph 1(b) as is provided by that law.

4. The limits of liability for any salvor not operating from any ship or for any salvor operating solely on the ship to, or in respect of which he is rendering salvage services, shall be calculated according to a tonnage of 1,500 tons.

5. For the purpose of this Convention the ship’s tonnage shall be the gross tonnage calculated in accordance with the tonnage measurement rules contained in Annex I of the International Convention on Tonnage Measurement of Ships, 1969.

ARTICLE 7
The Limit for Passenger Claims

1. In respect of claims arising on any distinct occasion for loss of life or personal injury to passengers of a ship, the limit of liability of the shipowner thereof shall be an amount of 175,000 Units of Account multiplied by the number of passengers which the ship is authorized to carry according to the ship’s certificate.

2. For the purpose of this Article “claims for loss of life or personal injury to passengers of a ship” shall mean any such claims brought by or on behalf of any person carried in that ship:
   (a) under a contract of passenger carriage, or
   (b) who, with the consent of the carrier, is accompanying a vehicle or live animals which are covered by a contract for the carriage of goods.

ARTICLE 8
Unit of Account

1. The Unit of Account referred to in Articles 6 and 7 is the Special Drawing Right as defined by the International Monetary Fund. The amounts mentioned in Articles 6 and 7 shall be converted into the national currency of the State in which limitation is sought, according to the value of that currency at the date the limitation fund shall have been constituted, payment is made, or security is given which under the law of that State is equivalent to such payment. The value of a national currency in terms of the Special Drawing Right, of a State Party which is a member of the International Monetary Fund, shall be calculated in accordance with the method of valuation applied by the International Monetary Fund in effect at the date in question for its operations and transactions. The value of a national currency in terms of the Special Drawing Right, of a State Party which is not a member of the International Monetary Fund, shall be calculated in a manner determined by the State Party.
2. Nevertheless, those States which are not members of the International Monetary Fund and whose law does not permit the application of the provisions of paragraph 1 may, at the time of signature without reservation as to ratification, acceptance or approval or at the time of ratification, acceptance, approval and or accession or at anytime thereafter, declare that the limits of liability provided for in this Convention to be applied in their territories shall be fixed as follows:

(a) in respect of Article 6, paragraph 1(a), at an amount of
   (i) 30 million monetary units for a ship with a tonnage not exceeding 2,000 tons;
   (ii) for a ship with a tonnage in excess thereof, the following amount in addition to that mentioned in (i):
        for each ton from 2,001 to 30,000 tons, 12,000 monetary units; for each ton from 30,001 to 70,000 tons, 9,000 monetary units; and for each ton in excess of 70,000 tons, 6,000 monetary units; and

(b) in respect of Article 6, paragraph 1(b), at an amount of
   (i) 15 million monetary units for a ship with a tonnage not exceeding 2,000 tons;
   (ii) for a ship with a tonnage in excess thereof, the following amount in addition to that mention in (i):
        for each ton from 2,001 to 30,000 tons, 6,000 monetary units; for each ton from 30,001 to 70,000 tons, 4,500 monetary units; and for each ton in excess of 70,000 tons, 3,000 monetary units; and

(c) in respect of Article 7, paragraph 1, at an amount of 2,625,000 monetary units multiplied by the number of passengers which the ship is authorized to carry according to the certificate.

Paragraphs 2 and 3 of Article 6 apply correspondingly to subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this paragraph.

3. The monetary unit referred to in paragraph 2 corresponds to sixty-five and a half milligrammes of gold of millesimal fineness nine hundred. The conversion of the amounts referred to in paragraph 2 into the national currency shall be made according to the law of the State concerned.

4. The calculation mentioned in the last sentence of paragraph 1 and the conversion mentioned in paragraph 3 shall be made in such a manner as to express in the national currency of the State Party as far as possible the same real value for the amounts in Articles 6 and 7 as is expressed there in units of account. States Parties shall communicate to the depository the manner of calculation pursuant to paragraph 1, or the result of the conversion in paragraph 3, as the case may be, at the time of the signature without reservation as to ratification, acceptance or approval, or when depositing an instrument referred to in Article 16 and whenever there is a change in either.
ARTICLE 9
Aggregation of Claims
1. The limits of liability determined in accordance with Article 6 shall apply to the aggregate of all claims which arise on any distinct occasion:
   (a) against the person or persons mentioned in paragraph 2 of Article 1 and any person for whose act, neglect or default he or they are responsible; or
   (b) against the shipowner of a ship rendering salvage services from that ship and the salvor or salvors operating from such ship and any person for whose act, neglect or default he or they are responsible; or
   (c) against the salvor or salvors who are not operating from a ship or who are operating solely on the ship to, or in respect of which, the salvage services are rendered and any person for whose act, neglect or default he or they are responsible.
2. The limits of liability determined in accordance with Article 7 shall apply to the aggregate of all claims subject thereto which may arise on any distinct occasion against the person or persons mentioned in paragraph 2 of Article 1 in respect of the ship referred to in Article 7 and any person for whose act, neglect or default he or they are responsible.

ARTICLE 10
Limitation of Liability Without Constitution of a Limitation Fund
1. Limitation of liability may be invoked notwithstanding that a limitation fund as mentioned in Article II has not been constituted.
2. If limitation of liability is invoked without the constitution of a limitation fund, the provisions of Article 12 shall apply correspondingly.
3. Questions of procedure arising under the rules of this Article shall be decided in accordance with the national law of the State Party in which action is brought.

CHAPTER III
THE LIMITATION FUND

ARTICLE 11
Constitution of Fund
1. Any person alleged to be liable may constitute a fund with the Court or other competent authority in any State Party in which legal proceedings are instituted in respect of claims subject to limitation. The fund shall be constituted in the sum of such of the amounts set out in Articles 6 and 7 as are applicable to claims for which that person may be liable, together with interest thereon from the date of the occurrence giving rise to the liability until the date of the constitution of the fund. Any fund thus constituted shall be available only for the payment of claims in respect of which limitation liability can be invoked.
2. A fund may be constituted, either by depositing the sum, or by producing a guarantee acceptable under the legislation of the State Party where the fund is constituted and considered to be adequate by the Court or other competent authority.

3. A fund constituted by one of the persons mentioned in paragraph 1(a), (b) or (c) or paragraph 2 of Article 9 or his insurer shall be deemed constituted by all persons mentioned in paragraph 1(a), (b) or (c) or paragraph 2, respectively.

ARTICLE 12

Distribution of the Fund

1. Subject to the provisions of paragraphs 1 and 2 of Article 6 and of Article 7, the fund shall be distributed among the claimants in proportion to their established claims against the fund.

2. If, before the fund is distributed, the person liable, or his insurer, has settled a claim against the fund such person shall, up to the amount he has paid, acquire by subrogation the rights which the person so compensated would have enjoyed under this Convention.

3. The right of subrogation provided for in paragraph 2 may also be exercised by persons other than those therein mentioned in respect of any amount of compensation which they may have paid, but only to the extent that such subrogation is permitted under the applicable national law.

4. Where the person liable or any other person establishes that he may be compelled to pay, at a later date, in whole or in part any such amount of compensation with regard to which such person would have enjoyed a right of subrogation pursuant to paragraphs 2 and 3 had the compensation been paid before the fund was distributed, the Court or other competent authority of the State where the fund has been constituted may order that a sufficient sum shall be provisionally set aside to enable such person at such later date to enforce his claim against the fund.

ARTICLE 13

Bar to Other Actions

1. Where a limitation fund has been constituted in accordance with Article 11, any person having made a claim against the fund shall be barred from exercising any right in respect of such a claim against any other assets of a person by or on behalf of whom the fund has been constituted.

2. After a limitation fund has been constituted in accordance with Article 11, any ship or other property, belonging to a person on behalf of whom the fund has been constituted, which has been arrested or attached within the jurisdiction of a State Party for a claim which may be raised against the fund, or any security given, may be released by order of the Court or other competent authority of such State. However, such release shall always be ordered if the limitation fund has been constituted:

(a) at the port where the occurrence took place, or, if it took place out of port, at the first port of call thereafter; or
(b) at the port of disembarkation in respect of claims for loss of life or personal injury; or
(c) at the port of discharge in respect of damage to cargo; or
(d) in the State where the arrest is made.

3. The rules of paragraphs 1 and 2 shall apply only if the claimant may bring a claim against the limitation fund before the Court administering that fund and the fund is actually available and freely transferable in respect of that claim.

ARTICLE 14

Governing Law

Subject to the provisions of this Chapter the rules relating to the constitution and distribution of a limitation fund, and all rules of procedure in connection therewith, shall be governed by the law of the State Party in which the fund is constituted.

CHAPTER IV

SCOPE OF APPLICATION

ARTICLE 15

1. This Convention shall apply whenever any person referred to in Article I seeks to limit his liability before the Court of a State Party or seeks to procure the release of a ship or other property or the discharge of any security given within the jurisdiction of any such State. 3bis Notwithstanding the limit of liability prescribed in paragraph 1 of Article 7, a State Party may regulate by specific provisions of national law the system of liability to be applied to claims for loss of life or personal injury to passengers of a ship, provided that the limit of liability is not lower than that prescribed in paragraph 1 of Article 7. A State Party which makes use of the option provided for in this paragraph shall inform the Secretary-General of the limits of liability adopted or of the fact that there are none.

4. The Courts of a State Party shall not apply this Convention to ships constructed for, or adapted to, and engaged in, drilling:
   (a) when that State has established under its national legislation a higher limit of liability than that otherwise provided for in Article 6; or
   (b) when that State has become party to an international convention regulating the system of liability in respect of such ships. In a case to which sub-paragraph (a) applies that State Party shall inform the depositary accordingly.
