EXPLANATORY NOTE

The purpose of the Merchant Shipping (Inspection of Seafarers’ Living and Working Conditions) Regulations 2001 is to implement the ILO Convention concerning the Inspection of Seafarers’ Working and Living Conditions) 1996 (No. 178) and the Labour Inspection (Seafarers) Recommendation 1996 (No.185). These two ILO instruments are means for the further enforcement of the ILO Convention No. 147 on Minimum Standards, which in turn is one of the pillars on which port state control is based.

The present regulations are intended to enable the enforcement of the powers of inspectors and surveyors under section 7 of the Merchant Shipping Act 1986 to carry out such inspections and surveys as requested by the Director. Moreover, the authorized officer referred to in the regulations may also be the Superintendent of Shipping who, under section 6 of the Merchant Shipping Act has the general duty of looking after the welfare of seamen and can be requested to perform other cognate duties by the Director of Shipping.

The provisions of the regulations are to be applied to Mauritius ships, including fishing vessels operating beyond the territorial waters of Mauritius and also to foreign ships within the Mauritius territorial waters, in accordance with the Indian Ocean Memorandum of Understanding on Port State Control to which Mauritius is a party.
The list laid down in section 2 with respect to the meaning to be ascribed to “living and working conditions” purports to be exhaustive as the present regulations are to complement the existing provisions as regards safety on board vessels as laid down under the Merchant Shipping Act (Part V) and other regulations made under the Act.

Section 4 gives the right to the seafarer who considers that there are failings in his living and working conditions on board the vessel to report the matter to the Director. The complaint may either be made by the seafarer himself or on his behalf by a representative of a seamen’s organization or union of which he is a member. The procedure for making the complaint is kept as simple as possible, the requirement being a letter of complaint being addressed to the Director, who, in the alternative, has the discretion to accept verbal complaints.

Sections 5&6 set the mechanism for the inspection to be carried out by the authorized officer and provides for the recourse to appropriate ministries to clear certain issues if needed (section 8). The relevant ministries would here be the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Labour or the Immigration Office. It is to be noted that the authorized officer has the discretion, following an inspection, to give the appropriate advice to the master or ship owner for the rectification of any deficiency detected.

Section 7 lays down the duty on the authorized officer to inform the master or the person on the watch of his presence on the ship on commencing an inspection and when he takes any sample on the ship for the purpose of analysis.
Section 9 provides for the notification to be given to the flag state in case any deficiency is noted on the foreign vessel under inspection. The issue of confidentiality of information is addressed under section 10 whereby the Director of Shipping and the authorized officer appointed to carry out an inspection have the duty to keep confidential the identity of the complainant and any information coming to their knowledge in the course of the inspection.

Section 11 makes it a duty for the authorized officer to make a report subsequent to every inspection to the Director of Shipping who in turn has the duty to keep a record of the inspections carried out.

Sections 12 and 13 deal with the instances where a ship may be detained and is to be released following detention. Here there is a duty on the Director to avoid any undue delay or detention of a ship under inspection. It is important to note that notwithstanding the fact that the present regulations do not make provisions for the recourse to judicial or administrative authority in case of wrongful detention or delay, recourse to the courts for a judicial review of the Director of Shipping’s decision is available under the general law.

Section 14 is in pursuance to the inspection of Mauritius ships which is to be carried out annually or within 3 months after any major change in the construction or accommodation arrangements on such ships, over and above any inspection which may be carried out on receipt of a complaint, and provides for the issue of a certificate of compliance to be issued to the vessels after inspection.
Section 15 makes provision for compensation to be paid to the ship owner in case there has been an unreasonable detention or delay. The quantum of such compensation is to be decided by the Court.

Section 16 provides for penalties to be levied in case of breach of the standards of living and working conditions by the owner and/or master of the vessel. Finally, section 17 gives the discretion to the Minister who is responsible for shipping matters to exempt any Mauritius ship from the application of the present regulations.
