MESSAGE BY MR. KITACK LIM

IMO SECRETARY-GENERAL AND CHAIRMAN, IMLI GOVERNING BOARD

I extend my warm congratulations to the class of 2022 on their graduation from this remarkable and unique institution. This is a distinct year for IMLI as it celebrates a hybrid graduation Ceremony for the first time due to travel restrictions as a result of the prevailing global health situation caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. The Institute has undergone substantial growth by adapting its work to the new circumstances, thus resulting in uninterrupted academic programmes throughout the year. Due to this laudable transformation, another group of students has been fully equipped to advance their careers in the service of their countries and are ready to join the ranks of a formidable network of over 1000 graduates from over 148 States and territories worldwide. Today's graduating class has become a part of the celebrated body of maritime professionals who are relied upon by their governments and the maritime industry for sound maritime legal advice.

At IMO, we take great pride in the work of IMLI. The Organization has attached enormous value to the education and training of maritime professionals. The quality education and training offered at the Institute is helping many countries to take their rightful positions and play their part in international maritime affairs and in the blue economy. You have had the privilege of being educated at IMLI, a centre of excellence in international maritime law and for the dissemination of knowledge and expertise in the field. You have been equipped with the necessary skills to contribute effectively to the realization of IMO's goals. The education and training provided by IMLI is a cornerstone of the Organization's capacity-building efforts and supports Member States with the legal expertise required for the incorporation and effective implementation of international maritime conventions in their countries.

Inconspicuously and efficiently, shipping reaches into the furthest corners of the globe to supply the world's populations with an uninterrupted daily flow of goods. We can truly say that there is no part of our lives which has not been touched by shipping. Nevertheless, for the maritime industry to remain safe, secure, clean and effective, it needs to rest on a foundation of globally-enforced standards. Behind the success of this industry are the seafarers who have always been at the centre of our work at IMO, and whose plight during the COVID-pandemic cannot be understated. I want to highlight the significance of the human element to the safety of life on board ships and the importance of ensuring that an appropriately trained and qualified future workforce is ready to meet the challenges and opportunities of digitalization and automation.

IMO is the United Nations specialized agency responsible for developing and maintaining international maritime standards, while responsibility for implementing the standards rests with national governments. IMO conventions and instruments need to be enshrined in national law and that is where the in-depth knowledge and experience of an IMLI graduate becomes paramount. The key role rests with you, as highly-trained legal professionals, to help your countries establish the solid legal framework needed for the maritime sector to thrive safely and efficiently, with a solid work force behind it.

Whether in commercial industry, international organizations, institutions or at IMO, an IMLI graduate's path to success is a well-worn one. Appreciation is due to the Institute, together with all its staff and many supporters and donors. Recognition is also due to the Director of the Institute Professor David Attard who, has ably led the institute, to enhance and build global capacity within the maritime sector.

Today is a time for celebration and contemplation, of reflecting and looking onward to how this successful period will help to foster new opportunities for the future. I wish all the graduands every success in their future endeavours, and I very much look forward to meeting many of you in a professional capacity in the coming years.
