LLOYD'S REGISTER FOUNDATION AWARDS IMLI A NEW MAJOR GRANT TO IMPROVE SAFETY ACROSS THE MARITIME INDUSTRY

The Lloyd's Register Foundation (LRF), an avid supporter of the Institute, has further strengthened its 20-year strategic partnership when it announced on Monday that it has awarded a £1,000,000 grant to the IMO International Maritime Law Institute (IMLI).

The Grant aims to further strengthen the adoption and effective implementation of maritime legislation that addresses emerging safety challenges, particularly around digitalisation and decarbonisation over a five-year period. The Foundation stated that this investment will fund specialized training for a global group of 16 maritime law experts, "who will each play a critical role in building resilience and improving safety across the maritime industry, especially in the Global South."

Mr. Tim Slingsby (Director of Skills and Education at Lloyd's Register Foundation) commented, "our strengthened partnership with IMLI reinforces our commitment to better ocean governance and will help to ensure that people working across the maritime system are safe from harm."

Professor Dr. Norman A. Martínez Gutiérrez, (Director, IMLI) said that IMLI is delighted to continue its partnership with Lloyd's Register Foundation. "Lloyd's Register Foundation has been a great supporter of the Institute since its establishment and has always believed in the Institute's mission for enhancement of capacity-building around the globe. The Institute and the Foundation share a common vision and this new grant bears testament of our joint efforts in ensuring that the oceans are safe and secure".
